

AOZ Studio Beta - Bug #105

New installer adds history I don't recognize. Loses my workspace.

Description

Previously after installing a new version, AOZ would open up with the new doc file, and I would still have my workspace.

After installing 0.9.3.2, it instead opens to the "Bookmarks" page. No workspace appears in the Explorer. Also, when I go to the History, I don't see my workspace there. Instead I see what appears to be someone else's history... so I have to manually locate my most recent workspace. See attached images.

And it overwrites the changes to visual studio you have done as well. But thats the perks of being a betatester I guess :)

After reading some more of the notes provided, I determined that after installing you need to close AOZ, and re-open in order to restore the workspace... at least it's working that way with version 0.9.5. So, there is at least a work-around for that portion of this item.

I'm not sure about the unknown history, since I opened a bunch of stuff before I got back to this again.
